【 Hong Kong, 6 May 2025 】 The volunteer team of Guotai Junan International Holdings Limited (“GTJAI” or the “Company”, stock code: 1788.HK) recently participated in environmental protection activities organized by the World Wide Fund for Nature (WWF), helping to assess the growth conditions of trees, supporting environmental conservation, and jointly promoting forest protection to create a better habitat for wild birds in Hong Kong.

The event was held at the Mai Po Nature Reserve which has a rich and diverse ecosystem, including lush mangroves, unique gei wei(基圍), fishponds and extensive reed beds. Mai Po is an important supply station for migratory birds on their migratory routes and is known as “Bird Paradise”. Volunteers explored the gei wei and fishponds in Mai Po to understand the uniqueness and importance of Hong Kong's wetland ecosystem, and helped to assess and improve the habitat for birds through participation in tree surveys.
