- (b) any act or thing done or cause to be done by you arising under, arising out of or otherwise in connection with or referable to this Agreement or any Account, or any Transaction entered into for or with, or any Services provided to, you, regardless of whether such loss is incurred in connection with any change in any Applicable Laws;
- (c) any of your representations, warranties, agreements and undertakings in this application of this Agreement being untrue, incorrect, incomplete or misleading in any material respect;
- (d) any actions, claims, demands or proceedings brought by third parties against us further to our acting in accordance with your Instructions or otherwise in the exercise of our powers under these terms and conditions regardless of whether such loss is incurred in connection with any change in any Applicable Laws;
- (e) us acting in accordance with your Instructions or taking any action, exercising any right or otherwise acting in any manner in accordance with or as permitted under these terms and conditions regardless of whether such loss is incurred in connection with any change in any Applicable Laws;
- (f) where you are acting as trustee of a trust, any dispute between the beneficiaries and yourself;
- (g) any change in any Applicable Laws; and
- (h) any act or thing done or caused to be done by us arising under, arising out of or otherwise in connection with or referable to these terms and conditions or any Account, or any Transaction entered into for or with, or any Services provided to, you, regardless of whether such loss is incurred in connection with any change in any Applicable Laws.

31. GENERAL EXCLUSION

- 32.3 Assumption of and Bearing of Risks: You agree to assume and bear all the risks involved in respect of such errors and misunderstandings and that we shall not be responsible in any way for the same or breach of confidentiality thereto and shall also not be liable for any claims, loss, damage costs, expense or liability arising therefrom.

32.4 Authorisation to Act: We are hereby authorised to act on electronic Instructions that we in our sole discretion believe emanate from you.

35.2 Account Restricted to Closing Transactions Upon Presentation of Notice: You understand, upon the presentation of such notice, that your Account shall be restricted to the closing transactions only (i.e. the liquidation of existing Investments). However, we may terminate the Agreement forthwith at any time without notice to you if you breach or fail to comply with any terms of the Agreement (termination for cause).

35.3 No Release from Obligations: Termination of this Agreement does not release you from any obligations which have accrued to that time (including without limitation your obligation to pay commission or any other fee/charges or amount to us incurred before, or in connection with, termination of these terms and conditions) or from any liabilities for any breach of any of the terms of these terms and conditions arising before the date of termination.

35.4 Right to Termination: Without prejudice and in addition to our rights under the Agreement, we shall be entitled to terminate the Agreement at any time as we deem appropriate in our absolute discretion if we have reason to believe that you may have ceased to be an accredited investor as defined under the SFA or you opt not to be

In such event, you acknowledge that we will no longer be able to make available to you any new Investments, execute any Transactions for you and certain Services may be discontinued. However, we will continue to serve you as an accredited investor in respect of the Investments and/or Transactions undertaken by you prior to such event.

You further agree that we may employ or use the services of any agent for, and delegate to any such agent, the performance of our duties and exercise of our rights in connection with your Investments, Transactions, Accounts and/or any of the Services offered to and utilised by you, upon such terms and conditions as we deem fit and you shall be bound by the same.
- 36.2 Act, Omission, Neglect or Default: We shall not be responsible for any act, omission, neglect or default of any such third party or agent provided that such third party or agent was selected and appointed by us in good faith.

37. GENERAL PROVISIONS

- 37.2 Illegality, Invalidity or Unenforceability: If any provision of This Agreement is or becomes illegal, invalid or unenforceable, the same shall not affect the legality, validity or enforceability of any other provision of this Agreement nor the legality, validity or enforceability of such provisions under the law of any other jurisdictions.

- 37.4 Time of the Essence: Time shall be of the essence in relation to all matters arising under these terms and conditions. Where "you" consist of more than one person, the liability of each of the persons shall be joint and several and references to "you" shall be construed, as the context requires, to any or each of the persons. We shall be entitled to deal separately with any of the persons including the discharge of any liabilities to any extent without affecting the liability of the others.
- 37.5 Transaction Treated as Authorised and Correct: Every Transaction indicated or referred to in any notice, statement, confirmation, contract note, or other Communication and every statement of Account shall be deemed and treated as authorised and correct and as ratified and confirmed by you unless we shall receive from you written notice to the contrary within seven (7) days after the date after such notice, statement, confirmation, contract note or other Communication is deemed to have been received by you.
- 37.6 Notification of Discrepancies and/or Error: You shall inform us within two (2) Business Days of the possession or knowledge of information, if you act as intermediary for or effected a Transaction on behalf of someone other than you as an ultimate beneficiary owner(s); and if you notice any discrepancies and/or error with regard to and in connection with any Account information, Transactions, settlements and fund transfers. You agree that your failure to notify of such discrepancy and/or error in a prompt manner (no later than seven (7) calendar days) would exonerate us and our agents from any claims, liabilities or damages resulted from those discrepancies and/or errors.
- 37.7 Rights and Remedies Cumulative: All of our rights and remedies under this Agreement are cumulative of, in addition to, and not exclusive or in derogation of, any other rights or remedies provided or available to us hereunder, by law, in equity or by any other agreement.

- 37.9 Failure or Delay to Exercise or Enforce not Prejudicial: No failure to exercise or enforce and no delay in exercising or enforcing on the part of us of any right, power or privilege shall operate as a waiver thereof, nor shall it in any way prejudice or affect our right afterwards to act strictly in accordance with the powers conferred on us under these terms and conditions, nor shall any single or partial exercise of any right, power, or privilege to which we are entitled. Unless otherwise expressly agreed in writing by us, no waiver of any provision in this Agreement relating to all or any Transaction, Service, or Account may be implied from any conduct or course of dealing between you and us. Our failure to insist at any time on strict compliance with any of the terms or conditions of the Agreement or any continued course of such conduct on our part shall, in no event, constitute or be considered as a waiver by us of any of our powers, rights, remedies or privileges.
- 37.10 Assignment of Rights and Obligation: We may assign our rights or obligations under the Agreement to any of our subsidiaries or Affiliates without giving any prior notice, or to any other entity upon prior written notice to you. Should there be any discrepancies or inconsistencies between the English version and Chinese translation of these terms and conditions, the English version shall prevail. You agree that the Chinese translation shall only be for your convenience.
- 37.12 If more than one individual holds the Account, and unless otherwise agreed by us:
- (a) these terms and conditions shall bind each individual;
  - (b) all undertakings, agreements, obligations and liabilities shall be joint and several and we may from time to time exercise or enforce all or any of our powers, rights or remedies under these terms against all or any of such individuals in our absolute discretion;

- 37.13 Instructions Given to Us: You agree that Instructions given to us may, for other reasons, including without limitation, default or cancellation by agents, vendors or third-parties or events of force majeure, fail to be executed, or may be executed or settled on a delayed basis. Neither we nor any of our directors, officers or employees shall be liable for any loss arising from any default, cancellation, act or omission of any agent or third party who performs services pursuant to these terms except where such loss is caused by our gross negligence, wilful misconduct or fraud. In no event shall we be liable for any loss of profits, indirect, consequential or special damages, howsoever arising.
- 37.14 No Liability for Damages or Losses: We shall not be liable for any damages, losses in your Account, or for any failure to carry out proper Instructions or comply with any of our obligations in this Agreement, arising from or otherwise resulting directly or indirectly from any "Event of Force Majeure", which for purposes hereof means any event beyond our ability to control and which is unforeseeable, or if foreseeable, is unavoidable, including but not limited to any fire, flood, earthquake, tsunami, flood, lightning, typhoon or other natural disaster, change of law, acts of terrorism, any war or military action, telecommunications disruption, computer failure, the failure of any Exchange, clearing house, settlement system or broker for any reason to perform its obligations, any strike or riot, and any government action or restriction, or any act of God.
- 37.15 Electronic Contracts and Signatures: You agree that these terms and conditions, together with any other account opening or application documents, may be provided to you by physical or electronic means. We may require you to execute such documents using an electronic signature in a manner that complies with our identity verification and authentication requirements. - 37.16 You acknowledge and agree that we may retain electronic records of any such documents as the original record for all purposes, and you shall not dispute the validity, enforceability, accuracy, or authenticity of any document solely on the basis that it is (i) in electronic form, (ii) electronically signed, or (iii) electronically stored.
- 37.17 Notwithstanding the above, we may, at our discretion or where required under applicable laws, regulations, or our internal policies (including for risk management or authentication purposes), request that you provide a wet-ink signature or physical documentation.

PART 2 – GENERAL RISK DISCLOSURE STATEMENTS

THIS PART DOES NOT, AND IS NOT MEANT TO, DISCLOSE ALL OF THE RISKS AND OTHER RELEVANT CONSIDERATIONS OF ENTERING INTO TRANSACTIONS IN INVESTMENTS. UNLESS OTHERWISE AGREED WITH US, IT IS EXPRESSLY AGREED AND UNDERSTOOD THAT WE DO NOT ACT AS YOUR FINANCIAL ADVISER IN ALL TRANSACTIONS.

THERE ARE VARIOUS INHERENT RISKS RELATING TO THE TRANSACTIONS. YOU SHOULD ONLY ENTER INTO SUCH TRANSACTIONS IF YOU UNDERSTAND THE NATURE OF THE CONTRACT AND THE POTENTIAL RISKS YOU MAY BE EXPOSED TO.

THEREFORE, YOU SHOULD CAREFULLY CONSIDER WHETHER ENTERING INTO TRANSACTIONS IS ADVISABLE, APPROPRIATE OR SUITABLE FOR YOU CONSIDERING YOUR EXPERIENCE, FINANCIAL AND OTHER CONSIDERATIONS. IN ENTERING INTO TRANSACTIONS, IT IS ADVISABLE FOR YOU TO SEEK INDEPENDENT ADVICE BY CONSULTING YOUR OWN FINANCIAL, LEGAL, TAX, REGULATORY AND OTHER ADVISERS.

1. RISK DISCLOSURE STATEMENTS

1.1 General Investment Risks

- (a) Risk of Securities Trading: The price of Securities fluctuates, sometimes dramatically. The price of a Security may move up or down and may become valueless. It is as likely that losses will be incurred rather than profit made as a result of buying and selling Securities.
- (b) Fluctuation in Prices: You acknowledge and agree that the price of Securities can and does fluctuate, and that any individual Security may experience upward or downward movements and may even become valueless. There is an inherent risk associated with the dealings of Securities and you are prepared and able to accept and tolerate such risk.
- (c) Securities in Custody: You acknowledge and agree that there are risks in leaving Securities in the safe custody of ours, our nominee or agent or in authorising us to deposit Securities as collateral for loans or advances made to you or authorising us to borrow or loan Securities; and that we will not be responsible for any damage or loss arising in connection with such safe custody nor any act, default or negligence of any independent nominee, or other third party(ies) and you accept that any Securities placed and pledged with any of them are at your own risk.
- (d) Trading facilities: Electronic trading facilities are supported by computer-based component systems for the order-routing, execution, matching, registration or clearing of trades. As with all facilities and systems, they are vulnerable to temporary disruption or failure. Your ability to recover certain losses may be subject to limits on liability imposed by the system provider, the market, the clearing house and/or participant firms. Such limits may vary: you should ask the firm with which you deal for details in this respect.
- (e) Off-exchange transactions: In some jurisdictions, and only then in restricted circumstances, firms are permitted to effect off-exchange transactions. The firm with which you deal may be acting as your counterparty to the transaction. It may be difficult or impossible to liquidate an existing position, to assess the value, to determine a fair price or to assess the exposure to risk. For these reasons, these transactions may involve increased risks. Off-exchange transactions may be less regulated or subject to a separate regulatory regime. Before you undertake such transactions, you should familiarise yourself with applicable rules and attendant risks.
- (f) Foreign exchange risk: Where Securities are denominated in a currency other than your home currency, you will be exposed to foreign exchange risk, i.e. the risk of potential loss due to fluctuations in exchange rates which may result in the loss of the principal amount invested.
- (g) Liquidity risk: Certain Securities may have a thin market with few buyers and sellers for the particular Security. You may not be able to buy or sell the Securities at your desired price, and this may have an adverse impact on the total return.
- (h) Past performance: Past performance is not a guarantee of future or likely performance of any Securities.
- (i) Country risks: Transactions on markets in other jurisdictions, including markets formally linked to a domestic market, may expose you to additional risk. Such markets may be subject to regulation which may offer different or diminished investor protection. Your local regulatory authority will be unable to compel the enforcement of the rules of the regulatory authorities or markets in other jurisdictions where your transactions have been effected. Before you trade, you should ask about any rules relevant to your particular transactions and understand the types of redress available in both your home jurisdiction and other relevant jurisdictions. There may be restrictions for foreigners, repatriation of capital investments and profits and there may be withholding or additional forms of taxes.

- (j) Credit risks: Securities may not be guaranteed by us, and are subject to the risks of the issuer or counterparty, including but not limited to failure by such issuer or counterparty to make good, valid or timely delivery or payment to you. You should also familiarise yourself with the protection granted to any money or other assets which you deposit for domestic and foreign transactions, particularly in a firm's insolvency. The extent to which you may recover his/her money or assets may be governed by specific legislation or local rules.

1.2 Product-Specific Risks

- (a) Risks associated with equities: The rate of return on equities is not guaranteed. Payment of dividends is at the discretion of the company's management and is usually dependent on the company's performance. Rises in the equity price depends on the market's assessment of the company's performance. There may be a total or partial loss of the principal amount invested if the company is not, or is not perceived to be, performing well.
- (b) Risk of trading bonds:
  - (i) Issuer default risk: There is a risk that the issuer may fail to pay investors the interest or principal as scheduled.
  - (ii) Interest rate risk: When the interest rate rises, the price of a fixed rate bond will normally drop. If investors want to sell their bond before it matures, they may get less than their purchase price.
  - (iii) Foreign exchange risk: Investors trading bond denominated in a foreign currency face an exchange rate risk. Any fall in the foreign currency will reduce the amount investors receive when they convert a payment of interest or principal back into the local currency.
  - (iv) Liquidity risk: Investors may need to sell the bonds before maturity when they have an urgent cash-flow need or use the capital for other investments. However, investors may not achieve this if the liquidity of the secondary bond market is low.
  - (v) Reinvestment risk: If investors hold a callable bond, when the interest rate goes down, the issuer may redeem the bond before maturity. If this happens investors have to re-invest the proceeds, the yields on other bonds in the market will generally be less favourable.
  - (vi) Equity risk: If the bond is "convertible" or "exchangeable", investors also face equity risk associated with stocks. A fall in the stock price will usually make the bond price fall.
- (c) Risks associated with derivatives contracts: Derivative transactions are subject to the following risks (this is not meant to be exhaustive):
  - (i) Market risk. This is the risk of loss due to adverse changes in the market value (the price) of the derivative transaction.
  - (ii) Basis risk. This is the risk that the derivative transaction may not properly match the exposure of the underlying asset or liability.
  - (iii) Operational risk. This is the risk of the internal risk management and control system failing to monitor risks on an on-going basis throughout the life of the derivative transactions.
  - (iv) Liquidity risk. This is the risk that certain benefits of customisation in certain financial and risk management objectives may be offset by market illiquidity.
  - (v) Systemic risk. This is the risk of some market players' inability to meet their obligations when due which, in turn, causes other market players in the financial market to fail in meeting their respective obligations when due.
  - (vi) Legal risk. This is the risk of unenforceability of the contractual rights and obligations governing the derivative transaction.

(d) Risks of trading in Collective Investment Schemes:

- (i) Collective Investment Schemes may take a variety of legal forms such as investment companies, partnerships or unit trust structures.

Futures and Options Funds

- (ii) These include funds with the primary objective of investing in financial and/or commodity derivative contracts. Such funds may invest in exchange-traded futures and options contracts, including over-the-counter options, forwards and swaps. These funds tend to be highly volatile and you should therefore assess if you are able to understand and tolerate the risks associated with trading in such funds.

Property Funds

- (iii) These are funds that invest or propose to invest in real estate and real estate related assets. The fund may or may not be listed or traded on an exchange. An investment in real estate may be by way of direct ownership or a shareholding in an unlisted corporation whose sole purpose is to hold/own real estate. Some examples of the risks specific to investing in property funds include (but is not limited to) the following:

- Diversification: Property funds tend to be less well-diversified than general securities funds.
- Illiquidity of properties: The underlying properties in a property fund are often illiquid. Property may have to be sold to make distributions if market conditions change, or to meet redemptions if the fund is unlisted or delisted; the property fund may be unable to do this expediently where the need arises.
- Valuation: Property valuation, which affects the offer price of units in a property fund, is subjective.
- High Gearing: Property funds tend to be more highly geared than securities funds. This could be risk if interest rates rise sharply.

(e) Risks of trading in structured products

- (i) Structured products are created by combining two or more financial instruments. Structured products may be traded either over-the-counter or on-exchange and can be in various forms (for example deposits, debt securities, etc.). Structured products carry a high degree of risk and may not be suitable for many members of the public, as the risks associated with the financial instruments may be interconnected. As such, the extent of loss due to market movements can be substantial. Before engaging in structured product transactions, you should understand the inherent risks involved. In particular, the various risks associated with each financial instrument should be evaluated separately as well as taking the structured product as a whole.
- (ii) As most structured products are complex, you should also understand the terms and conditions of the structured products as provided in the term sheet, confirmation and/or any other documents (for example, offering circulars or pricing supplements) provided to you including the calculation of the returns and redemption amounts, restrictions, liquidity, transferability and the nature and economic risks of the underlying securities or assets. With structured products in the form of debt securities, buyers can only assert their rights against the issuer. Hence, particular attention needs to be paid to issuer risk. You therefore need to be aware that a total loss of your investment is possible if the issuer should default. Structured products often combine debt securities or deposits with one or a number of derivative components. The products may consist of warrants, options, or forwards embedded in debt securities or any of a wide variety of equity securities, deposits, commodities and/or currency combinations. As a result, the income, average life, and/or redemption value for these products can become dependent upon the forward movement or future performance of various underlying indices, currency spot and forward rates, credit events occurrence, equities prices, commodities prices, futures, funds net realisable values, etc. Further, the value of a structured product may be linked to the value of its embedded derivative component(s), which may be subject to considerable fluctuation depending on market forces.

- (iii) Structured products that do not carry a capital guarantee involve a capital risk. Where the capital is guaranteed, you will be exposed to the credit risk of the guarantor. The guarantee does not give any assurances as to the future solvency of the guarantor and the guarantee may be terminated prior to maturity of the structured products upon the occurrence of certain events as stated in the relevant product specific documents. The capital guarantee is also linked to the nominal value rather than the issue price or the secondary market price. Capital guarantee does not therefore mean 100% or full repayment of the purchase price for all products. The market value of a structured product can fall below the level of its guaranteed amount, which can increase the potential loss on a sale before maturity. In other words, a capital guarantee is only available if the buyer holds the structured product until maturity.
  - (iv) For structured products for which whole or partial withdrawal prior to the maturity date is permitted as specified in the product specific documents, the deposit or debt securities may be withdrawn or redeemed in whole or in part, before the maturity date of its option. This is subject to the conditions and procedures for withdrawal. In this case, the early withdrawal/redemption amount shall be the fair market value of the structured product as determined by the specified calculation agent in its discretion, having regard to the customary practices or market practice (if any) and taking into account any cost suffered by us or the issuer or any of our/its counterparties in respect of unwinding any financial instruments which have been set up to hedge against exposure in connection with the structured product. Such determinations by the calculation agent shall be binding and conclusive as against you. The result of an early withdrawal is that the amount received by you may be significantly less than the original amount invested and even zero. However, you should note that unless expressly permitted, you may not have the right to terminate the transaction before its maturity date or there may be a lock-up period during which early withdrawal is not permitted. In the event that withdrawal or termination occurs, for whatever reason, you will be required to pay all damages (including any replacement costs incurred) resulting or arising from such withdrawal or termination.
  - (v) Each structured product has its own risk profile and given the unlimited number of possible combinations, it is not possible to detail in this Risk Disclosure Statement all the risks which may arise in any particular case. Nonetheless, this Risk Disclosure Statement attempts to provide a general description of the features and some of the risks applicable to a couple of common types of structured products.
- (f) Equity-linked Notes
- (i) Equity-linked notes (ELNs) may be viewed as combining a debt instrument with an option that allows a bull (rising), bear (falling) or range bet. The return on an ELN is usually determined by the performance of a single security, a basket of securities or an index.
  - (ii) A bull ELN combines a traditional deposit with the premium received from writing a put option on the chosen securities. If the value of these securities falls to a level less than the strike price minus the premium received, the buyer will suffer a loss. The maximum potential loss could be the entire capital sum. Although the bull ELN offers a higher yield than traditional deposits, it is only suitable for investors who are prepared to accept the risk of receiving the underlying securities if the value of the securities falls below the strike price at maturity.
  - (iii) A bear ELN combines a deposit with the premium received by selling a call option on the chosen securities. Upon maturity, the amount that the issuer of a bear ELN will repay the investor depends on the strike price and the market value of the securities at maturity. Buyers of a bear ELN must be prepared to accept the risk of losing the entire capital invested if the market value of the securities is above the strike price.
  - (iv) A range ELN combines a traditional deposit with the premium received by selling both a put option and a call option on the chosen securities.
  - (v) You should note that the return on investment of an ELN is pre-determined, so that even if your view of the direction of the underlying market is correct, you will not gain more than the specified amount. You should also note that there is no guarantee that you will receive the principal amount invested or derive any return on your investment in an ELN. In addition, there is a limited secondary market for outstanding ELN issues.

(g) Risks of trading in option contracts

- (i) An option is a right granted by a person (the seller or writer) to another (the buyer or holder) to buy (call option) or to sell (put option) a specified amount of an underlying asset at a predefined price (strike price) at or until a certain time (expiration date), in exchange for the payment of a premium. Transactions in options may involve a high degree of risk and may not be suitable for many members of the public. Before trading, you should calculate the extent to which the value of an option would have to increase for your position to become profitable, taking into account the premium paid and all transaction costs.
- (ii) Options may be granted on all kinds of assets and may be traded on-exchange or over-the-counter. The terms of an option may be standardised (e.g. in the case of certain basic currency and interest rate options) or may be custom tailored to meet the needs of the holder or the writer. There is generally no market available for such tailor-made options. In principle, they can be cancelled only by concluding a reverse transaction with the same counterparty and transactions cannot be assigned or transferred to a third party without the agreement of all parties. Warrants are options in securitised form.
- (iii) Exercising an option results either in a cash settlement or in the buyer acquiring delivery of the underlying asset. The buyer of an option may offset its position by trading in the market or exercise the option or allow the option to expire. If the option is on a futures contract or leveraged foreign exchange transaction, for example, the buyer will acquire the position together with associated liabilities for margin.
- (iv) Some options are described as “American-style”. These may be exercised on any trading day up to and including the expiration date. “European-style” options may be exercised only on the expiration date. There are other types of options and you should carefully review the term sheet or other documentation for any product to understand its structure.
- (v) A call option is in-the-money if the current market value of the underlying asset is higher than the strike price. A put option is in-the-money if the current market value of the underlying asset is below the strike price. An option that is in-the-money is said to have an intrinsic value. If the current market value of the underlying asset and the strike price are the same, the option is at-the-money. An option may also be out-of-the-money. If purchased options expire out-of-the-money, you will suffer a total loss of your investment which will consist of the option premium paid plus transaction costs. If you are contemplating purchasing deep-out-of-the-money options, you should be aware that, ordinarily, the chance of such options becoming profitable is remote.
- (vi) The price of an option depends on its intrinsic value, and on its time value. The latter depends on a variety of factors, including the remaining life of the option and the volatility of the underlying asset. The time value of an option reflects the chance that it will be in-the-money. In general, the value of a call option decreases, and the value of a put option increases, as the value of the underlying asset falls. The less an option is in-the-money, the larger the decrease in value. This decrease also generally accelerates as the life of the option expires, and is proportionally larger than the decrease in value of the underlying asset. However, in certain cases, the value of an option may decrease even if the value of the underlying asset remains unchanged or moves in favour of the buyer.
- (vii) The risks associated with writing an option are generally greater than buying an option. If the option is covered by a corresponding position in the underlying asset, the risk may be reduced. Conversely, if the option is uncovered, then the possible loss may be unlimited.
- (viii) If the writer of a call option has a corresponding quantity of the underlying asset at his disposal, the call option is described as covered. In such case, if the value of the underlying asset exceeds the strike price, the writer misses out on the upside potential as it must deliver the asset to the buyer at the strike price. However, the writer also bears the entire risk for any losses incurred on the underlying assets following a drop in market value. The losses are, however, reduced by the option premium received.
- (ix) The writer of an uncovered call option does not own the underlying asset. In such case, the exposure is the spread between the strike price and the value of the underlying asset, less the premium received for granting the call option. Since the market value of the underlying asset can move well above the strike price, the writer’s potential loss is theoretically unlimited.

- (x) The writer of options must take into account the fact that the option may be exercised in very unfavourable, high-loss market situations in which physical delivery obligations may be very difficult or very costly to fulfil. It may sometimes even be impossible to acquire the necessary underlying asset. This risk is particularly high in the case of American-style options because the option can be exercised at any time within the exercise period.
- (xi) The writer of a put option who does not have a short position in the underlying asset is subject to risk of loss should the price of the underlying asset decrease below the strike price upon exercise or expiration of the option by an amount in excess of the premium received. Conversely, the writer of a put option who has a short position in the underlying asset is subject to the full risk of a rise in the price of the underlying asset reduced by the premium received. In exchange for the premium received for the writer of a put option, the writer gives up all the potential gain resulting from a decrease in the price of the underlying asset below the option strike price upon exercise or expiration of the option.
